REALTY EXPERT TELLS SYSTEM OF VALUATION

Explains Estimate of Southern Building.

(Continued from First Page.) Mrs. Lillian Carlson, wife of the said in making the appraisement of captain of the Wilson, was one of tuose rescued. She is young and is a bride of a few months, and has been going to sea with her hisbard ever since hood should be considered, rather than cost price of the price at which a prop-erty was held.

Appraisement Method.

For this reason, he said, he used neither the Assessor's figures, the cost figures, nor the St. Matthew's Church selling price in computing the worth of the land upon which the Southern building was erected.

"It would not be fair for me to ask a man what he paid for property if I were going to appraise it," said Mr. Hensey. "I would be prejudiced then; it would be impossible not to be. So. Mr. Prouty, if I were going to assess your house I would not want to know that you paid $10,000 for it. I would want to take in the relative values of the property around it."

Calls It Valuable Plot.

Mr. Hensey said he regarded the Southern building corner as one of the most valuable in the city. The ground, he said, was worth from $45 and $50 per square foot, at least $45.

In making the appraisement, testified Mr. Hensey, the appraisers considered the earning capacity of the building, which was estimated at $114,000 annu-

Mr. Hensey was quizzed at length regarding real estate values in the vicinity which Congressman Berger has terms the "Wall Street of Washington." "How much more valuable is the Southern building corner than the land at Vermont avenue and I street?" asked Attorney Douglas.

"It is worth at least $20 a foot more," said Mc. Hensey.
"If the Chamberlin Hotel site cannot be bought for $30 a foot, what would you say the Southern land was worth?" "At least £0 a foot more for the Southern plot."

Early Passage of La Fol-Schooner Drifts Helplessly, Southern Building Appraiser Magnate's Appearance at Trust Probe Depends on Result of Examination.

> Rockefeller, the elusive Standard Oil magnate, will be examined by a physician for the Money Trust Committee, probably at Miami, upon his return from the Bahamas, Chairman Pujo announced today that she committee's specialist would leave here today, and it was assumed that the committee had word of Rockefeller's intention to return within a few days to the United States.

The name of the medical expert and the place where he will meet Rockefeller were kept secret by Pujo today. It leaked out, however, that the physician, who was said to be an eminent throat specialist, who has frequently had White House patients, will meet Rockefeller at Miami. The committee desires that Rockefeller be protected from annoyance by process servers and reporters, and the meeting of the millionaire and the physician is therefore kept secret.

Baker insisted this information is now in the hands of the Comptroller of the Currency. He and his attorneys held a long consultation. The committee passed the question until later.

"Would publicity of assets eliminate oubtful securities and restrain bank officers and directors from borrowing the banks money?" Untermeyer asked. "I haven't any opinion on that," the inancier declared.

Baker said the purchase of Chase National Bank stock by the First Security Company was "purely a personal, prirate transaction You think the public has no interes
